IRIS OFFERING

CLINT McDADE HEMEROCALLIS INTRODUCTIONS

GENERAL HEMEROCALLIS LIST

For this, our first offering of plants, we are pleased to be able to offer the Grant collection of iris which we purchased this spring. The late Dr. Henry Lee Grant of Louisville, Kentucky was noted for his hybridizing of iris, and most especially for his keen discrimination in selecting only the very finest plants for introduction.

We also take pride in the splendid offering of Clint McDade's day lilies. Although the name Clint McDade has of late been associated more with orchids, Mr. McDade has been hybridizing day lilies and iris for many years.

Because of the limited amount of time, we are sending our first offering on multigraphed sheets, but next year we hope to have a more impressive catalog to send you.

For orders of $10.00 or more, we will send you 25% of your order free, selected from the varieties marked with stars before them - you to select the bonus plants you desire. For instance, if your order is $10.00, you may select starred varieties amounting to $2.50.

Besides our regular named list of hemerocallis, we are offering a mixture of hemerocallis. In order to introduce only the very finest things into commerce, it means that there are many seedlings which bloom that are not different enough from older named varieties, or are so very similar to ones being introduced, that all of the fine things that bloom cannot be offered for sale under name. Therefore, if you want some very lovely blooms for mass plantings, with a balanced mixture of color, let us ship you these plants. 25 for $6.00; 50 for $10.00, express collect.

Regular plant orders sent postage prepaid.

IRIS ORIGINATIONS OF THE LATE DR. HENRY LEE GRANT

Frank Drake - 1947 - It was in memory of the late Mr. Frank Drake of Louisville, Kentucky, a close friend of Dr. Grant, that this iris was named. An iris with perfection of form and finish, it has heavy smooth substance and finish of marble. A cool reverse bicolor with standards of Reed yellow completely domed and very firmly held by the strong midrib. The oval, very flaring falls are pure white with a generous overlay of Chartreuse gold surrounding the beard of the same color which is lightly tipped with white. A stately iris of great beauty, the refinement of form and unique color are most outstanding. Well branched and vigorous growth. $15.00

Pensive - 1947 - Few very dark iris have depth of color, excellent form and substance, but in Pensive we find all three. Lustrous and commanding, it is a self of velvety blackish purple, with uniformity of color throughout. A cross of Sable x Deep Velvet, it has better branching, substance, and nonfading qualities than either of its parents. One of the most pleasing dark iris of recent years, it has good garden value, and has been praised by many iris lovers. Heavy substantenced flowers, good branching, and vigorous growth. One of the last iris to be selected and named by Dr. Grant. $15.00

Golden Epaulets - 1946 - A new white and gold iris of extremely heavy substance, full rounded form and as smoothly finished as a piece of ivory. The standards are broad and very firmly held; the falls are full and flaring and the neat heavy flush of gold on the haft is as trim and precise as the epaulets on a uniform. The loveliness of this warm white is enhanced by the smooth firm finish, and the infusion of gold in the throat and beard. Good branching and increases rapidly. $12.50

Jasmine - 1944 - A very smooth golden yellow without any brown or orange tones. The flowers are clear in color with a decided velvety sheen on the falls. The standards are conic and domed, the falls semi-flaring and full. There are no haft markings, and the velvety surface of the falls extends way down into the throat. The flowers have a gardenia texture and are evenly spaced on well branched stalks. $18.50

Mont Blanc - 1946 - Pure white blooms with very flaring form and the heavy substance of a magnolia blossom. Even in the crowded field of white iris this stands out on account of its exceptionally fine form, smooth strong texture and wide low branching. Large full-bodied flowers slightly ruffled at the edges of the falls and with no haft markings. An iris that will delight you with its clear fresh crispness. Vigorous growth and strong sturdy flowering stalks. $15.00

White Wedgwood - 1943 - A most descriptive name for a very noteworthy iris. When the flower first opens it is a very light blue white that soon changes to pure white save for a slight blue flush at the haft. The flowers have very strong substance with closed and domed standards, and semi-horizontal falls. The purity of the flowers is in sharp contrast to the heavy dark blue beard. Sturdy well branched stalks. $9.00

For some years Mr. McDade has been hybridizing daylilies, and we are especially pleased to be able to introduce some of his outstanding originations. Bi-colors have interested him tremendously, and some of the new creations are most unusual and startling. Knowing plants as he does, Mr. McDade's standards are quite high and unless a hemerocallis has unusual merits, Mr. McDade will not keep it for introducing into commerce. Mr. McDade has been working to obtain a long season of bloom, and some of his new varieties are quite late blooming, thereby having bloom at a time in the South when nothing else will bloom.

- | | |
|--|--------|
| * Au Revoir - Small, very late-blooming. This hemerocallis has not bloomed yet with us and we were unable to obtain description in time for printing list. | $5.00 |
